

You think "No Shirt, No Service" sucks? You don't understand why you can't get a beer or your trash deposit without wearing a t-shirt? You think being topless doesn't hurt anybody?

You are not the only one. There are many of you. And we've already had to have a discussion about it with most of you. And because we don't feel like it at this year's Fusion, you're receiving this flyer with the most frequently asked questions and comments instead.

1 *I think everyone should be allowed to walk around as they like.

At Fusion Festival everybody is allowed to run around topless. But it's mostly guys who do it. The others have chosen not to - and they have their reasons. Women, trans*people and queers often experience sexual harassment, comments about their bodies and being stared at. Even if they wear clothes. The desire to show nipples fades quickly under these circumstances. And somehow it seems that you only want to see tits.

2 *The real problem is sexual harassment and not running around without a t-shirt.

That's what you think. We say, two symptoms, one problem. And the problem is called patriarchy. And that's why the two issues can't be separated. Sexual harassment and insisting on walking around topless are each types of sexist behavior.

Some people are able to walk around topless, without being harassed or grabbed.

Others can't - for example People of Color, trans*people and women with and without disabilities. And that shows that people are not equal at this festival - welcome to the patriarchy. If you can take off your t-shirt without fear of stupid comments and sexualized assaults, you are on the privileged side. And hence you and your lack of a t-shirt are part of the problem.

3 *You're getting too upset, it's just a t-shirt!

Right now it is you who is getting upset. And you are not alone in that. Guys say we didn't get screwed enough, they insist on being naked while throwing their garbage bags into the bin and demand that we finally take off our tops. This shows that it's obviously about more than "just a t-shirt".

4 *But what is the point of prohibiting it? That just makes you Stalinist Femi-Nazis!

We don't prohibit anything, you just don't get anything. And by the way: here at Fusion Festival it's not called Femi-Nazi but Wutbürger:in.

dudes and nudes!
